
Global Temperature Update

August 2010

July 2010 is the 2nd warmest July on record (since 1880).

The graphic above was created with data released mid-August by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) and its National Climate Data Center (NCDC). The data is published monthly as part of its State of the Climate Global Analysis.

More Info

NOAA NDCC | DATA: Global land and ocean surface temperature anomalies since 1880

NOAA NCDC | About global surface temperature anomalies

NOAA NCDC | 2009 State of the Climate Highlights \(10-page PDF\)

(Ten planetary indicators all show that the planet is warming)

Columbia U | J Hanson on July 2010 temperature and 'What global warming looks like'

News

NY Times | Has a warming Russia outpaced the world? | Aug 6 2010

"On Thursday, the mercury hit 100 degrees in Moscow, the hottest day since record-keeping began in 1880."

SolveClimate | Record temperatures on 19% of Earth's surface

Original story and graphic Climate Central